"SAPIRO PLAN" FOR MARKETING STAPLE IS ADOPTED BY THE FARM BUREAU MEN

Joint Conference of North Alabama Agents Held Here This Morning

C. O. MOSER EXPLAINS THE PLAN IN DETAIL

Dallas Visitor Tells How Farmers of Texas Are Being Helped

The Sapiro plan of marketing, which several years ago turned the California fruit industry from failure to success and is now doing the same thing for the cotton, hay, tomato and other Texas farmers, was accepted as the best method of marketing cotton in the future in Alabama at a joint meeting of representatives of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation and the Alabama Extension Service here today and tentative plans outlined for setting up the marketing machinery, beginning early next year. The decision was reached after C. O. Moser, of Dallas, explained the plan and also how the Texas farmers are now realizing from five to fifteen dollars per bale more for their cotton as a result of proper financing, warehousing, grading and selling on the Sapiro plan.

Edward A. O'Neal, of Florence, was present as the principal Farm Bureau representative, while Director L. N. Duncan, District Agent I. T. Quinn, and the county agents of North Alabama were present as representatives of the Extension Service.

At the close of the meeting it was announced that definite plans will not be forthcoming for several weeks but that the work will be handled by the Extension Service and Farm Bureau jointly.

FERTILIZER TAGS OF LAST SEASON USED

(Montgomery Bureau, Albany-Decatur Daily)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Oct. 27.—In accordance with the terms of an order issued by Commissioner of Agriculture M. C. Allgood, fertilizer manufacturers, mixers and dealers will be permitted to use any fertilizer tax tags for 1920-21 now on hand for the present season. It is also announced that the Department of Agriculture is now ready to furnish state fertilizer tax tags to anyone desiring them. This arrangement for the use of last season's tags, it is explained, is permitted under the provisions of a bill passed during the present extra session of the legislature.

Commissioner Allgood's letter follows: "To the Fertilizer Manufacturers, Mixers and Dealers. Gentlemen:

"Owing to the fact that the cotton acreage was reduced and only about fifty per cent of the fertilizer tax tags of the season 1920-21 were used, the legislature passed a law allowing the Department of Agriculture to use all fertilizer tags now on hand, and also providing that fertilizer manufacturers, mixers and dealers can use fertilizer tags they now have on hand for the present season. The Department of Agriculture is now ready to furnish all parties desiring tax tags. If you have any 1920-21 fertilizer tags on hand you can use same as if they were new tags.

"The Fertilizer Bulletin is now in the hands of the printer and will soon be ready for distribution. You will find the new fertilizer law in the back of this edition. These will be mailed you promptly as soon as this department receives them. All fertilizer licenses and registrations of brands are now due."

Governor Kilby Approves Speech of the President

(International News Service)

CAMP BENNING, Ga., Oct. 27.—Still a bit husky from his strenuous day of speech making in Birmingham, President Harding arrived here this morning for a visit of inspection on his way northward again.

Accompanied by Secretary of War Weeks, the President made a two hour inspection of the camp before proceeding on to Atlanta, where he will make a speech later in the day. The President is due to arrive in Atlanta at 1:30 o'clock. He will leave there at 7 o'clock for Washington, reaching there tomorrow forenoon.

Friends of the President believed his frank handling of the race problem at Birmingham will have a beneficial result upon the country generally, despite the marked coolness with which it was received by the white part of his audience and Birmingham generally.

Secretary of Interior Fall is among those who approved the speech. "It was the boldest speech on the question that I ever heard. I believe that it will receive general and wholehearted approval," said Fall.

Secretary of War Weeks said it was a history making speech and that it had his hearty approval.

"It was a clear and concise statement of the race problem. It has my approval," said Governor Kilby, of Alabama.

Cotton Shortage of 3,000,000 Bales Is Predicted by Pres. John Wannamaker

(International News Service)

BIRMINGHAM, Oct. 27.—Problems facing the cotton growers of the South were the chief questions opened for discussion when members of the American Cotton Association opened the first business session of their national convention here this morning. Hundreds of delegates, headed by President Wannamaker, were present when the convention was called to order. It will remain in session through Saturday.

Mr. Wannamaker, in addressing the delegates this morning, forecasts a shortage of 3,000,000 bales of cotton this year. He estimated the 1921 crop at 6,427,700 bales.

"It is unanimously agreed by economists that it is necessary to have on hand at the close of the cotton year on July 31 at least 3,000,000 bales of American cotton to supply the needs until the cotton from the growing crop can reach the spindle," Mr. Wannamaker said. The estimated consumption to August 1, 1922, was placed at 5,500,000. This, deducted from the 1921 crop, will result in a shortage of approximately 3,000,000 bales, he declared.

"Cotton mill consumption in the United States for the month of September, just passed, amounted to 485,000 bales or at the rate of 5,820,000 bales a year. The exports for September were at the rate of 6,276,000 bales per year, making the total domestic consumption and export exceeding 12,000,000 bales. If the rate of export continues for another six and one-half months the entire production of 1921 would be shipped abroad to foreign spinners, leaving only the crop brought over from the 1920 crop to supply our domestic needs," Wannamaker said. He declared that the 1921 crop was the smallest in 35 years. This is due to reduction of practically 30 per cent in the cotton acreage planted this year as compared with the 1920 acreage, the non-use of high grade commercial fertilizer, the widespread destruction by the boll weevil and the adverse climatic conditions in all sections of the cotton belt.

The low yield of cotton lint per acre as a result of these conditions has necessarily largely increased the cost of production. World-wide under consumption due to the war and drastic artificial deflation in market values, Mr. Wannamaker said, have brought disaster to the raw cotton industry.

There has been no over production, he said. The present condition of the cotton farmer was described by Mr. Wannamaker as the worst in the history of the cotton belt in peaceful times.

He described the cotton producer as a farmer who often has to jump from the frying pan into the fire, taking the consumer with him.

MANY MILLIONS IN ADDITIONAL LOANS FOR GROWERS OF COTTON AND GRAIN

War Finance Corporation Expands Lending Functions, as Congress Outlined

WANTED—BORROWERS. SITUATION PREDICTED

Loans Are Reduced at the Banks by One Billion Dollars

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Many millions of dollars in additional government loans are ready to be distributed to cotton growers of the South, grain growers and live stock raisers of the Southwest and West. The war finance corporation, expanding its lending functions for agriculture along lines mapped out by Congress, today decided to make much heavier advances as co-operative farming groups and financial interests have perfected plans to absorb them.

Part of the reduction of nearly $1,000,000,000 in loans at member banks of the federal reserve system is due to the far-reaching steps now being made.

Cotton growers of the South and other groups are proceeding with more confidence. Officials said today that bankers have been forced to adopt a more liberal policy toward the farmer as a result of the government's vigorous relief measures. Bankers will soon be seeking borrowers in an effort to place their surplus cash, instead of harassing borrowers to pay up on loans, the reports from federal reserve bank centers indicated.

Reserve board reports today showed that while loans have been reduced at banks by one billion dollars, the reductions in accommodations to manufacturers totalled nearly two billion dollars.

Bandmaster Put Under Arrest But Is Freed Quickly

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., Oct. 27.—

Bandmaster Proctor, of the Coburn Minstrels, was placed under arrest at noon yesterday while he was leading a concert at the northeast corner of the public square on a charge of disturbing the circuit court, but he was promptly released from custody after being taken before Judge Robert C. Brickell. It appears that Judge Brickell sent Deputy Sheriff Walter Sanders out during the concert to have the band put the soft pedal on its concert and Mr. Sanders understood that he had instructions to arrest the band, which he did. The matter was very quickly adjusted when the leader of the band and John L. Hay, manager of the Elks, went into court.

Many Will Get Sample Copy of Sunday's Daily

Sample copies of the Sunday issue of The Daily on October 30 will be sent to all rural route boxes served by the local postoffice. The extra distribution of that issue will make of it an unusually attractive advertising medium.

The Daily believes that the rural residents of this section will appreciate the Sunday Daily and it is making this effort toward the end that its circulation may be built up in the counties of Morgan, Lawrence and Limestone counties.

Local merchants are taking advantage of the special distribution of papers to offer a number of unusual bargains for next week.

PLANS FOR FEEDING TWIN CITIES SHOULD THREATENED STRIKE OCCUR ARE TALKED

Meeting of Business Men Held at Albany Chamber of Commerce

METHOD SOUGHT FOR FOOD DISTRIBUTION

Wholesale and Retail Grocers Will Hold a Conference Tonight

Plans for handling the necessities of life in the Twin Cities, should the threatened railroad strike materialize, were discussed at length today at a meeting in the rooms of the Albany chamber of commerce, attended by a number of business men of Albany and Decatur. The purpose of the meeting was not to discuss the merits of the factions in the present controversy, but to discuss methods for distributing food and other necessities in order that there might be as little suffering as possible on the part of the general public.

The situation in the railroad controversy was explained as follows: The engineers, conductors, telegraphers and switchmen now are involved in the controversy with the railroads, but shop crafts are not involved at this time.

Conferees this morning expressed the purpose of the meeting as seeking a method by which all may share and share alike in the necessities of life which will be available here should there be a tie-up of transportation facilities. A committee was named with A. A. Hardage as chairman, the mayors of Albany and Decatur as associate members and the three to name two additional members, to make a survey of what can be done if the strike goes into effect as scheduled.

A meeting of the wholesale and retail grocers will be held tonight at 8 o'clock at the chamber of commerce to discuss the best measures to be taken and to report their findings to the committee of five on Friday evening at 8 o'clock at the chamber of commerce.

The plans which have been put in effect in Atlanta and other cities were discussed at the meeting this morning. It is probable that some of them, if not all, for the distribution of food for the public, will be adopted.

Gasoline Sales Tax Are Less

(Montgomery Bureau, Albany-Decatur Daily)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Oct. 27.—Verily "it is an ill wind that blows no one any good." Oil companies doing a wholesale gasoline dispensing business in Alabama have for some months been getting less for their product as of yore, but as a result thereof the franchise tax they have paid to the state is considerably decreased. Figures prepared by W. C. Swanson, chief clerk in the state auditor's office, show that though the license tax paid by the Standard Oil Company for the fiscal year 1919-20 was $40,222.84, the same tax which is based on gross sales amounted to only $37,074.16 for the year 1920-21. The same comparison shows a decrease in the tax paid by the Texas Company of more than $3,000, or $14,283.39 for 1919-20 as compared with $11,403.30 for 1920-21.

Paving Bonds in Albany Permitted By a Special Act

(Montgomery Bureau, Albany-Decatur Daily)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Oct. 27.—The house today passed the Burleson bill, amending the law so as to permit a correction of the estimate for street improvement in Albany. This bill, if passed by the senate, will provide for the issuance of street improvement bonds already authorized but not issued because of an error in the engineer's estimate.

SENATOR HARRISON CRITICIZES SPEECH OF CHIEF EXECUTIVE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—

President Harding's speech on the race question at Birmingham yesterday was described as unfortunate by Senator Pat Harrison, Democrat, of Mississippi, in a statement which he issued today.

Harrison's statement declared that the President's speech, advocating political and economic equality for the negro, put forth a theory that "is impractical, unjust and destructive of the best ideals of America."

SOLONS DETERMINE TO QUIT SATURDAY

(Montgomery Bureau, Albany-Decatur Daily)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Oct. 27.—Both houses of the legislature started work this morning determined to adjourn sine die Saturday night if within the range of possibility. The House gave a constitutional majority to a bill which came up late Tuesday providing for submission of a constitutional amendment at the election next November, giving the voters of Jasper, Talladega, Dora, Cordova, Tuscaloosa, Oxford, Citronelle, Girard and Albany the right to tax themselves not greater than one per cent of their property values for local revenue for improvements. Albany was inserted at the request of Speaker Lynne, just before the House passed the bill. It will receive first reading in the Senate today.

All measures included in the governor's call and not yet acted on, except the Sunday observance measure, were made special orders by the rules committee today. The Sunday observance bill has been killed by the Senate.

Movie Censorship Meets a Reverse

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Oct. 27.—

The Senate indefinitely postponed Thursday morning the bill to provide for an inspection of all movies before they are shown to the public. The Senate also postponed indefinitely the constitutional amendment bill to allow Mobile to change its tax rate. Another bill postponed was the one to provide for the payment of the chartered train which carried the members of the legislature to Birmingham Wednesday.

BROTHERHOODS ARE GIVEN OPPORTUNITY TO AVERT WALKOUT ON OWN INITIATIVE

Members of Board Unofficially Predict That Peace Is Imminent

UNION LEADERS ARE GREATLY PERPLEXED

Fear Wrath of Public on One Hand and Own Men on Other

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—Peaceful settlement of the railroad strike, scheduled for October 30, seemed imminent this afternoon as the first session of the conference of executive committees of the five railway brotherhoods that have voted to walkout, adjourned.

Definite decision to rescind the strike order appeared certain at this afternoon's session of the rail union leaders. The United States railway labor board has prepared an order declaring the strike of the big five railway brotherhoods illegal and directing the heads of the brotherhoods, it was authoritatively learned today, issuance of the order will be withheld, pending the outcome of the conference.

The brotherhood chiefs will be given an opportunity to withdraw the strike orders before the labor board issues its mandate that the strike is illegal and must be called off.

Members of the board unofficially predicted today that peace is near. They believe that their announcement that no further wage cuts will be considered until controversies over working rules are disposed of, paves the way for the brotherhoods to withdraw their strike orders.

It is understood the board has notified Washington of its findings and of its preparation to issue an order intending to halt the strike. The brotherhood chiefs were openly perplexed as to their course as they entered the executive conference, which was held behind closed doors.

Their attitude was that they would incur the wrath of their members if they called off the strike and the disapproval of the public if they did not. "I cannot say what the outcome of this meeting will be," said P. C. Cashen, head of the switchmen's union, as he entered the conference. Other brotherhood chiefs would make no statement. Cashen announced, however, that the proposal of the labor board that the brotherhoods call off the strike on the board's assurance that there would be no further reduction in wages, in advance of the settlement of controversies on working rules, would be considered.

It was reported, but not confirmed, that the heads of the brotherhoods would submit to the executive committees a proposition that they call off the strike and give the labor board an opportunity to make good on its assurances with regard to future wage cuts and rules governing working conditions.

Whether the executive committees would concur in such recommendations, if they were made, remains to be seen.

ROADS TO RUN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Reports to federal agencies indicate that the railroads will be able to operate despite the railroad strike, it was stated officially today by a member of the cabinet. The railroads are reporting that they expect to be able to secure a sufficient number of men to take the places of any who leave their work. Attorney General Daugherty announced that the department of justice will take no action in connection with the strike until a walkout has actually occurred and its effect has been seen.

COMMITTEE TO MEET

The sanitary committee of the Albany council will meet tonight at 7 o'clock with Mayor Payne to discuss the sanitation ordinance which levies a special tax for garbage collection.

HENRY FORD THE ISSUE
AND HE SEEMS TO BE A LIVE ONE

In nearly every sense Henry Ford seems to be the issue in the matter of the disposition of Muscle Shoals. There is an element reported to be against the auto maker, on the ground that he is too revolutionary to be practical, as is shown by the effort of certain interests to have Henry restrained from reducing rates on his railroad. There is a group, said to be opposing him on the ground that he will ruin for them the fertilizer business as it now stands. But this allegation has been variously denied, and the claim made that the fertilizer makers and dealers welcome him, and wish to encourage Mr. Ford in his proposed attempt to make cheap nitrates for the farmers. Certain conservationists, like Gifford Pinchot, are reported to oppose Ford on the grounds that the Muscle Shoals plant is worth more than Mr. Ford thinks it is.

The vast majority of the people without regard to class, business, or educational advantages are for Mr. Ford to have the Muscle Shoals, simply because Henry Ford is what he is. Such declare that his past record alone, is sufficient evidence that Ford and Ford alone is the one man who can make a success for all the people in developing the power of the Tennessee river at Muscle Shoals. Those who have pinned their faith to Mr. Ford, and who believe he should have the chance he is seeking—have had one fear as to the possibility of his losing the opportunity—they have feared that Mr. Ford, tired out with his long wait for approval by the government, would invest elsewhere, rather than be put off indefinitely. To those who have felt this way—recent dispatches to the effect that Ford is showing determination and aggressiveness on his own part, are indeed gratifying, especial reference being made to the report that the Detroit manufacturer, has said to the federal authorities, that in case his figures and theirs as to the total cost of completing the great project, cannot be brought into agreement, that he will give bond to complete the dams and all things necessary, at his own figures, and deliver the finished product, subject to the approval of the government. If Mr. Ford has actually made such an offer, it would seem that he has silenced all his critics forever and placed the government where it has no choice but to award to him, the completion and operation of the whole Muscle Shoals enterprise.

GAIN AND LOSS

Our civilization is wasting more than it creates. Whatsoever gives off more than it receives perishes. Our people are spending more than they produce. On the incomes of peasants we are living like kings. Some are riding Rolls-Royces when they are able to use only a second-hand Ford.

The governments are mortgaging the future without the consent of the unborn future generations. The world's business, governmental and social structure are much like the soil of the earth. We are taking more out from these structures than we put in. Obviously the time will come when they can reproduce no more.

In many parts of the earth there are vast reaches where once were fertile valleys and green hills, where cattle, sheep and horses roamed, where the vines produced blue grapes and where the fields gave out golden harvests of wheat. In the centers of these broad regions were cities with paved streets and aqueducts, with huge defensive walls, which surrounded palaces whose glittering domes defiantly hurled back the rays of the sun. Those lands are now dead. You can get a picture of them from Omar. Those cities are submerged. The sands of the soil that became desert in the thousand years ago have swept over them and buried them, and no man knows where they were.

There is an old Rome buried under modern Rome. There are ancient cities, the story of which no man knows today, deep under other ancient cities in Chaldea and in the Nile Valley.

Why did these cities die? Because the adjacent territory could not longer support them.

Why did the adjacent territory die? Because men took out of the soil more than man or nature put back. The soil was milked dry as an undernourished cow or as an underfed woman; and then the soil became sterile.

When these ancient cities perished, a civilization perished, a bank business perished, a medical science went down into the general wreck; a system of laws was forgotten. Chaos swept over and destroyed intellectual achievements, more startling than some of the things we have accomplished during our present generation.

But we want to get this editorial close up to our readers. We will, therefore, jump from Chaldea and Asia Minor, come away from the tombs of the dead Caesars and Cyruses into Shelby County and Memphis, Tenn., and into Forrest City, Helena, Shakerag, Hindman's Crossroads and into rural free delivery route No. 1.

The thing that is going on universally is going on particularly in this county, and is going on particularly in every other county in the United States.

We are going to pay a state and county tax rate this year of about $1.40 on the hundred. We are going to pay about four times as much taxes to our state and county as we did eight years ago. We are going to pay twice as much taxes as we did six years ago. The county is going to spend more than it collects. The city is going to do the same thing.

The county will issue bonds for schools, roads, bridges, and it may use some of the money from the bonds to buy meal and flour for the poor.

house convicts, to feed the prisoners in the jail and to pay the fee of the man in Nashville, who, in the name of the law, kills our murderers and highwaymen.

Memphis will spend more money than it will collect from its taxes. Memphis will issue bonds, lots of bonds. Tennessee is spending more money than it collects from taxes, and Tennessee will issue more bonds.

The United States is spending more money than its income, and it will issue more bonds in addition to the $23,000,000,000 already floating.

Germany has worked up a different scheme. It is putting its presses to work and is printing paper money. It will continue to print this money until the white paper itself costs as much as the purchasing price of the same paper turned into money.

What Germany is doing Poland has done, until a Polish mark is worth about 1 per cent of a German mark, which is worth about 1 per cent of an American dollar, when it should be worth fourth of an American dollar.

Russia has printed paper money until one cannot carry enough in bills of small denominations to pay for a pot of tea and a hunk of black bread. (This explores in practice the theory of fiat money.)

Coming back home, we bond our city to a point where our tax rate will take the net rental income from our property. Then we will be through. The people of Memphis in this event will be forced to take the bankrupt law, abandon the town to the creditors and move off. But the town will be a dead thing in the hands of the creditors because nobody will live in the houses and use the hotels. The city would die. The bonds it issued would die.

A nation can go bankrupt as well as an individual, and so can a city. Now the nation will go bankrupt when the income of a nation is unequal to its expenses, and the city will do the same, and the individual will do the same.

The white races today are consuming more than they produce. We cannot make up the deficit by exploiting the so-called inferior races as once we did. Our world democracy in this event stands us in bad hand. Under the forms of commerce we cannot rob the ignorant Chinks, Hindoos and Malays, because this business is thoroughly out of line with the new principle of human equality. Moreover, the submerged people are beginning to assert themselves and insist that they must either come up to our level or we must go down to their level.

There is a limit to a nation or an individual drawing on the future and finally our drawing power will stop as an electric machine may stop, which gets its energy from a storage battery that has not been recharged.

When the war broke out, Mr. Claude Kitchen said he was going to put all the expenses of the war on the rich. In the meantime the government issued a lot of non-taxable securities and the rich turned around and put their money in these.

The rich were willing to pay heavily in 1918, 1919 and 1920, but in 1920 the people stopped buying because the rich people, the government and labor made prices high beyond endurance. Then the rich got poor. Then a lot of wheels stopped. The owners attempted to hold up prices. The laborers attempted to hold up prices. Everybody demanded the old price for what he had to sell and wanted a new price for what he had to buy. There was a bloc, with the result that in 1921 one-half of the riches accumulated during the last three years was lost, and in 1922 there will be little tax from the income of the rich because the rich have got a lot of frozen, nonproducing assets.

The government, in its desperation, is talking about a sales tax and other forms of tax. In the states and cities we are not cutting expenses, but are issuing bonds. The whole thing will finally end up in more taxes than income, more debts than money to pay, more consumed than produced, more idle than busy, more going out than coming in and more consumption than creation.

What is the remedy? Your own common sense will give it to you if you think about it.—Commercial-Appeal.

In the meanwhile what has become of the "ultimate consumer" to say nothing of the "profiteer."

Where ever he is, old man ultimate consumer, if he gets a cut in freight rates as a result of the threatened unpleasantness, can say that it is an ill scare that bears no one any good.

The proposition of disarmament has resolved itself into an Alphonso and Gaston act, after you dear Gaston. The nations of earth through their representatives have their eyes out on stems to see who will be first to dip into this dish of disarmament. It is not really an appetizing morsel, but they would take some as an act of expediency.

There can no longer be any doubt but that the world is deteriorating since a lawyer has been found mean enough to say that Nurse Edith Cavell lost her life to the German Huns, through a legal error of her attorneys. Enter Satan, "ex-eunt" every body else!

Those who are afraid of competition are about as sensible as the lady, who refused to bathe in the surf with the haughty remark: "Another lady is using the ocean."

For the sake of all that is good, be yourself; and strike all along to make a better self out of yourself.

Some fellow said; that rush and hurry had so permeated the American people, that should the janitor of some of our fashionable churches fail to open the doors wide when the services were dismissed, in order that the congregation might make a hasty exit, he would be fired summarily for dereliction of duty. A strong indictment if true, and is food for thought.

That person who is content to work in his little sphere of activity, menial though his labor may be, and does his work well with the thought all along of turning out the very best product from his toil that is possible, is contributing his share in the progress of the world as much so as if he were directing the management of a large factory.

Time and tide are things of swiftness and wait for no man's slow motions.

Great Sunday School Convention
Planned for Kansas City in June 1922

1,677,695 Sunday school officers and teachers and 12,036,246 pupils in the United States and Canada are already planning for their delegates to the sixteenth International Sunday School Association convention to be held in Convention Hall, Kansas City, Mo., June 21 to 27, 1922. And the executive secretary, Dr. Marion Lawrence, for over 20 years secretary of the association, is devoting his entire time to setting up and perfecting the arrangements for what is expected to be the greatest and most significant Sunday school gathering ever held.

8,000 official delegates from 54 state Sunday school associations in the United States and the 9 Provincial Sunday school associations in Canada are expected to be present. Even at this early date it has been necessary to limit the number of delegates that each state and provincial association can send to one for every 4,000 Sunday school members actually enrolled.

Unusual significance is attached to this sixteenth international Sunday school convention due to the fact that it is the first time in the history of Sunday school work that all of the national and international forces have been united in their work. For a number of years there have existed two great Sunday school organizations, the International Sunday School Association which is organized into state and county association and the Sunday School Council of Evangelical Denominations. This latter body is composed of representatives of 32 denominations, while the former has worked through these same denominations and non-denominational schools.

The bringing together of these two bodies into one organization and the uniting of all the efforts and plans makes possible an educational committee which is now preparing a comprehensive plan of religious education which will bear an abundant fruit in the lives of the next generation of American and Canadian citizens. This committee will present its program on the afternoons of Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, June 21, 22 and 23.

Moreover, the sixteen International Sunday School convention will not be a convention of speeches only. Experts of national and international fame will be heard but a considerable amount of time will be given to institute work by groups. This makes it possible for Sunday school workers with children, or young people or adults to get instruction for their particular need. It also gives opportunity for those whose work is of an administrative character or among special types of people or in the field of missions or temperance, to study their particular problem in a group giving itself to this task alone. There will also be conferences of those who prepare the lesson systems, those who write the helps for the Sunday school lessons, and the publishers of lesson helps and dealers in Sunday school supplies.

It is planned that there shall be an "Association Day Service" in all of the Sunday schools of the continent on Convention Sunday, June 25. On this day the conventioners will attend the Sunday school of their preference in Kansas City, and many of them will supply pulpits in the Twin Cities. The evening meeting will be given over to the work of the World's Sunday School Association, of which Mr. John Wanamaker is president and Frank L. Brown is executive secretary. This program will be prepared and presented by the officers of the World's Association.

Professor Augustine Smith, of Boston University, will be in charge of the music, Arthur F. Stevens, of the Methodist Book Concern, New York City, will prepare and direct a great exhibit of Sunday school helps, supplies and activities.

A memorial service will be held for Sunday school leaders of the United States and Canada who have died since the last convention which was held in Buffalo, June 19 to 25, 1918. Furloughed Foreign Missionaries who may be in the country are to be registered without fee and invited to sit on the platform. The registration fee for all others is to be $3.50 which includes a copy of the printed report for the convention.

THREE ARE DEAD
IN TAMPA STORM

(International News Service)

TAMPA, Fla., Oct. 27—So far as can be ascertained today three persons are known to have lost their lives in the tropical storm which swept through this city and up the west coast of Florida Tuesday and Tuesday night. This is the only known loss of life, but the property damage is tremendous and will run into millions.

There are no electric lights and the trolley service is demoralized. Newspapers cannot be printed owing to lack of power. There is no water to drink. Palmetto beach was inundated by the high tide, swept up by the wind.

Many houses were destroyed. Here was the only loss of life reported to the International News Service correspondent. Two were drowned and one was electrocuted.

Factories were badly damaged by water and many buildings were unroofed by the storm. In Hyde Park, the rich residential section, water covered a broad expanse of ground. The damage here to homes was enormous.

All industries are paralyzed owing to the inability of the power company to furnish electric current.

Meat Markets to Be Closed Sunday

Meat markets will be closed on Sundays in the Twin Cities, according to an order issued by Sheriff J. V. May. The closing order is made under the provisions of the state Sunday observance act.

OFFERS TO SELL "TIPS"
FROM MARS FOR 20 CENTS

(International News Service)
COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 27—That he is receiving dream messages from Mars which are superior to all forms of government is the claim made by Professor Charles V. Barton, Santa Cruz, Cal., on a printed postcard he mailed to City Clerk Moore here.

Professor Barton informed Clerk Moore that he is able, also, to settle all problems of politics, tariff and graft, as well as all labor troubles.

An interesting portion of the communication was the assertion that, for this cure-all information the professor made a charge of only twenty cents to cover the cost of mailing and preparing two letters.

BILL HANGS FIRE

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Oct. 27—(Special)—Although a large majority of the senators favored the proposed constitutional amendment bill, submitting to the voters the question of abolishing the State Department of Agriculture and Industries, the measure lost because it did not get the required three-fifths majority. Nineteen voters desired to submit the question to the voters, as against nine in opposition.

GERMANS LIVING "HIGH"

BERLIN, Oct. 27—The minimum cost of living for every individual German has gone up to sixteen times the pre-war rate. The government fixed it at 396 marks, which is the equivalent of $3.02 at the present rate of exchange.

How to Make Breathing Exercises
Improve the Beauty of Your Chest

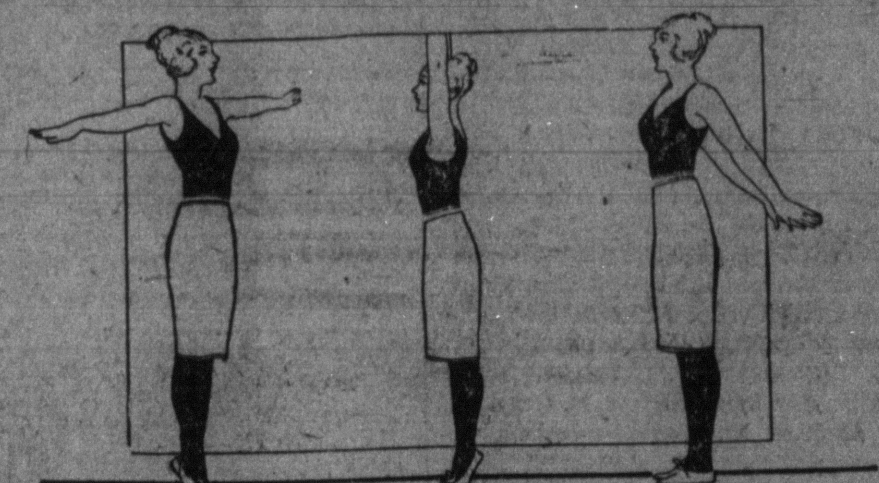

By LUCRIZIA BORI
The Famous Spanish Prima Donna

A POORLY developed figure is a great detriment to the beauty of any woman. Of course, clothes will, to a certain extent, conceal some of the defects which mar her appearance. If, however, she has a sunken or narrow chest, its lack of beauty will be more strongly emphasized every time she dons her evening gown. Should she have no occasion to wear evening clothes, she may lament the poor contour of her chest when she wears a high-necked daytime frock designed especially to reveal the neck and shoulder line.

Now, one of the best ways to raise your chest and increase your chest expansion is to do some breathing exercises daily. A few minutes devoted two or three times a day to this will greatly change the appearance of your chest. Do not say that you haven't time if you are in earnest about improving your appearance. These exercises may be done without

In the second exercise you should again assume the erect position, with your chin well drawn in. Now, inhale very slowly all the air you can and hold it as you did in the first exercise. Next, exhale very slowly, but do not relax your chest muscles. Repeat this again, and gradually do it until you can easily keep it up for six times.

In the third exercise you should inhale very slowly. Simultaneously raise on your toes and swing your arms to their full length sideways. Now touch the sides of your forefingers lightly over the top of your head. Then, as you swing your arms back again to your sides and sink again to your heels, exhale very slowly. In this exercise you should not hold your breath between the movements. You can regulate the speed of this exercise by counting one on the upward motion and two as you swing your arms downward again. Repeat this exercise at least ten times. Of course, the aid of any accessories, and they may be done at any time. Perhaps you will find it is easier for you to exercise for a few minutes in the morning as well as in the evening, rather than to take fifteen to twenty minutes at one time.

It is immaterial so long as you determine to exercise regularly, and keep it up. When doing such exercises you should wear as little clothing as possible, for you want your muscles to be absolutely unrestricted.

In the first exercise, stand erect and inhale quickly as much air as you possibly can. Now hold your breath for a quarter of a minute or longer. Then empty your lungs as completely as possible. This you can do by relaxing your chest muscles and forcing in the muscles of the abdomen. Repeat this exercise twice. Then, as you become stronger, increase the number of times until you can keep it up easily for six times.

At first you may not feel equal to doing this more than three or four times, but gradually repeat the number until you can do it ten times with the greatest of ease.

In the fourth exercise, stand erect with your arms extended straight to the front and your palms touching. Now, breathing naturally, force your arms backward and downward quickly, and try to touch the tips of the back of your fingers behind the small of your back.

This exercise may be done for as many as twenty times, provided you do not tire yourself. Of course, if you have not been accustomed to exercise, or you are at all rundown, the least exertion in the way of exercise may prove rather tiring to you. In this case, use your judgment, and, if necessary, exercise more slowly, and repeat the exercise fewer times until you have accustomed yourself to the different movements.

BILL DEFEATED

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Oct. 27—(Special)—Because the number of votes required by the constitution were not obtained, the bill submitting a constitutional amendment which would permit Alabama towns to levy and collect a tax rate of not exceeding one per cent per annum was not passed by the House late Tuesday afternoon. When it was seen sixty-four votes were not registered for the amendment the roll call was postponed and became unfinished business for Thursday. Fifty-nine had voted for the submission of the amendment and three against it.

A REAL SNAKE STORY

(International News Service)
PARIS, Oct. 27—Francois Jannier, living at Dijon, has but one hobby in life. It is that of killing vipers around his native town. A recent fifteen days' bag totalled 550, and in ten years Jannier has accounted for more than 20,000 vipers. Vipers are only found in central and southern France, but are extremely dangerous in those regions.

"THE GREAT DAY" AT THE DELITE THEATRE TODAY

From the point of view of architecture and interior decoration, one of the most impressive scenes in "The Great Day," which will be shown at the Delite Theatre today, is the representation of Sir Jonathan Borstwick's palatial residences on the grounds of which he gives a big reception.

An interesting point in connection with the furnishing of this scene is that some of the furniture came originally from Blenheim, the great palace which was erected in the early eighteenth century and presented to John, Duke of Marlborough, in recognition of his services in breaking the power of Louis XIV.

Blenheim palace was designed by Sir John Vanbrugh, famous as architect, dramatist, theatrical manager and soldier, and according to the inscription over the entrance to the east court, was built between the years 1705 and 1722. Two of the magnificent gilt and tapestried chairs and the stool which now adorn the drawing room scene in "The Great Day," were originally part of the furniture in one of the three State Rooms at Blenheim.

THE PRINCESS THEATRE
TODAY AND TOMORROW

The Princess Theatre will have as its feature attraction today and tomorrow, Constance Talmadge in "Dangerous Business," adapted by John Emerson and Anita Loos from Madeleine Buchanan's story, "The Chessboard."

It does not follow the conventional lines of the persecuted heroine, the villain and the rescuing hero. Nancy Flavell, the madcap society girl who is always falling in and out of love is about to marry one man when at the very altar in order to escape a distasteful marriage she declares she is already a married woman and the wedding is off.

MY MARRIAGE PROBLEMS

Adele Garrison's New Phase of

Revelations of a Wife

Copyright, 1921, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

The Way Bess Dean Met Every Kindly Overture.

"I'm sorry we've nothing with which to bathe and anoint these poor feet," Lillian said tenderly, the natural nurse in her rising above the dislike that I suspected she felt for Bess Dean. "But there's nothing I can do further except wrap them loosely in this gauze. That's right, Madge," as I proffered her two large pieces which I had cut from the roll always carried for an emergency in the pocket of the car. "Now some pins. Just lift that foot a trifle. Now the other. There!"

Swiftly, skilfully, she swathed the bruised and swollen feet in loose wrappings of gauze, cradling them for a moment in her hands as she gave her final directions.

"Madge, please, that motor blanket, folded and laid on this footstool. Now, Miss Dean, your feet on that. Madge, that sweater of yours which you won't need, the day is so warm—just put it over her feet lightly. There, Miss Dean, you're as comfortable as you can possibly be until we reach Mrs. Cosgrove's."

"Thanks," Bess Dean murmured shortly. "But I could have done as I was until I reached here."

Lillian made no reply to this ungracious speech, nor did I. But I felt a little salving of my conscience, as one does when a person one has injured is in a position to be repaid. And I had caught a quickly veiled but angry glance from the girl's eyes which told me that she held me, not her own folly, responsible for her plight.

What Lillian Suggested.

There was no more conversation in the tonneau save the merest common-places during the journey home. Robert Savarin and Dicky kept up a running conversation, and I was sure at one point the grave artist was giving a description of the weird "portraits of souls," which the soft-blended artist had exhibited in the art gallery, for Dicky laughed heartily, and I caught fragments of phrases which betrayed the subject of his merriment.

And then, at last, we turned into the familiar drive of the Cosgrove place, and Lillian spoke softly, with her own rare thoughtfulness, to Bess Dean.

"You won't be able to step on those feet now," she said. "Don't you think you'd prefer to have Mr. Cosgrove carry you to your room instead of—"

I turned toward Dicky and Robert Savarin.

I think the girl already had planned the humiliating journey to the house which she must make, and was determined that if possible Dicky should not witness it.

"Of course," she replied decisively,

"Pa Cosgrove is the only man big and strong enough to carry a woman up a flight of stairs."

How It Was Arranged.

Her tone subtly relegated Dicky and Robert Savarin to the outer limbo of physical weaklings.

"And please get everybody out of the way first," she added imperiously, with a side glance which included me in the proscribed list.

There was a touch of malice in that glance which irritated me, and I am afraid it was a crude sort of revenge my temper spurred me to take.

"Oh, Dicky," I said gayly. "Don't dare turn your head when you get out, but walk straight down the path to our cabin. And if you see Mr. Cosgrove, send him here to carry Bess in. I'll explain when I get there. Robert, you are also requested to make yourself scarce."

"Ours not to reason why," Dicky retorted, setting out of the car with Robert Savarin following. Then the two men walked swiftly down the path to the cabins with no backward glance. At the mention of his father, Ted Cosgrove had tumbled from the running board and rushed into the house. I guessed that the elder Cosgrove would be in evidence very shortly, so I alighted from the car myself.

"If you don't need me," I said to Lillian, "I will go and look up the children."

"Don't excite yourself on that score, Madge," Bess Dean contrived to assume her natural air of good-natured badinage, but I knew instinctively that her finger-nails were trembling primitively for contact with my eyes. "I don't need anyone, and your husband is waiting for your explanation."

A sudden pang of conscience seized me. I whirled and looked her levelly in the eyes.

"Look here, Bess," I said straightforwardly. "Dicky will have no explanation from me. That was only a feat. And I think you know me well enough to believe that I mean what I say."

"Oh, yes, everybody knows you have the one and only simon-pure Puritan conscience," her laughter had a tiny edge. "Ah, here's Pa Cosgrove!"

Jovial Mr. Cosgrove, his face full of concern, came to the side of the car with many ejaculations of dismay, and as I turned away I caught a glimpse of Bess Dean being lifted in his giant arms and borne into the house, where Mrs. Cosgrove, with alarmed aspect, awaited him and his burden.

Lillian followed them in, and I—knowing that all possible attention would be given the girl—walked slowly down the pathway to my own cabin.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Kennedy are expected home tonight from a bridal trip to Atlanta and other points south.

TO THE WOMEN OF ALBANY

Please allow us to call your attention to the mass meeting of the Parent-Teachers' association to be held Friday afternoon in the Albany High School auditorium.

If you are not a member, come any way. Let us have at short notice a pronouncement of your opinion on a subject of great public concern. It is the concurrent opinion that the women of Albany will vote, an almost solid vote, for the Bond issue for the schools.

Burden Rests on Future Generations

Will you stop a moment and think of the time given to clear up this indebtedness. The burden of this issue does not rest on this generation of voters, but the children and their children's children. Of course some objections are abroad. What worthwhile effort was ever put over that its supporters did not fight for?

Then again objectors have a vision of the awful financial mess these children of the future will have to bear. This very progressive step provides for that. A high school building of sufficient size to house and train these children, who, with their advanced educations, will be enabled to take care of with ease such problems. Women of Albany, let us speak in one big voice for a Bond issue of sufficient amount to build a High school that will meet the requirements of these children.

Mrs. W. B. Coppage of Staunton, Tenn., is visiting her sister, Mrs. J. F. Browne of Johnston street.

Mrs. P. S. Malone has returned from New Mexico where she spent the summer with her son.

Mrs. W. K. Shedd will arrive Friday from Columbia, to visit her sister, Mrs. W. R. Shelton.

Y. P. M. S. TO GIVE BAZAAR AT ELECTRIC SHOP.

The Y. P. M. S. of the Central Methodist church will give a bazaar in the attractive electric shop of Messrs. Thomas and Mainard, on Second Avenue, Saturday afternoon and evening, October 29. Home made candies, jellies, pickles, flowers and fancy work will be for sale and in connection with the bazaar there will be an "Art Gallery." In this gallery such popular subjects as "A View of the River," "A Stirring Subject," "Ahead of the Times," "A Popular Composer," "The Torn Standard" and many other interesting subjects will be shown.

TWO notable features of the newest frocks are the long sashes and the long sleeves. The latter may be developed in many diverse styles, from the long, tight-fitting sleeves to those which are flowing at the wrists.

The long sash often takes the place of a pointed panel, and almost trails on the ground. It is frequently enlivened with a lining of some contrasting color and fabric which is decidedly interesting.

The model at the left is fashioned from gray crepe, and reveals an afternoon interpretation of the slip-over frock. It is elaborately embroidered in violine tones about the hem, while the pointed sash is faced with violine georgette.

The guimpe is cut from gray georgette, and shows a novel sleeve. This is finished with a wrinkled cuff, into which the fullness of the slashed sleeve is drawn. Tiny violine-colored buttons are used for the trimming.

The dress at the right is cut from blue crepe satin. The collar is faced with red georgette, which is also introduced to line the side panels and to face the wide-mouthed sleeves.

Small red wooden beads ornament the sleeves and the front of the frock, while buttons and braid of the same shade are chosen for the fastening.

WEEKS MAY SPEAK AT LOCAL STATION

Secretary Weeks, who will personally inspect the Muscle Shoals nitrate plant Friday, may deliver an address at the Decatur station on his return to Washington. Clyde Hendrix and A. A. Bloodworth will deliver invitations to the Secretary to speak here should he decide to maintain his schedule which calls for his departure from Sheffield shortly after noon. Efforts are being made in the Tri-Cities, however, to get the Secretary to remain over until the midnight fast train.

COTTON MARKET UNDER PRESSURE

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—The cotton market was under further selling pressure today. After the start of offerings increased and prices sold about 18 points net lower. The unsettled railroad labor situation with poor cables, Wall Street and New Orleans selling, caused most of the weakness. Prices at the end of the first 15 minutes were 4 to 5 points up from the lowest.

Announcement was made by the University of Pittsburgh of the appointment of Edward Ray Weidlein as director of the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research. Mr. Weidlein has been acting director since the recent resignation of Dr. Raymond Foss Bacon. Mr. Weidlein first came to the institute in 1916, as assistant director. Later he was appointed chemical expert for the War Industries Board. His activities in this position called forth the highest official commendation. He has a rich experience in the supervision of industrial research and in the systematic investigation of the problems of chemical and physical technology.

A Conundrum.
While watching a moving picture of the Isle of Wight, recently, an old English conundrum was recalled to our mind. It ran thus: Why is the Isle of Wight a fraud? In the future when any member of the New York Police Department embark on a particularly dangerous mission he will be protected by the latest device in light armor, a steel corset, or bullet-proof jacket. The jacket, invented by Albert Schwartz, of New York, is made of Norwegian steel plates, silk and canvas. It weighs only six pounds and has been proven practical in tests conducted in the shooting gallery at New York Police Headquarters. The jacket deflected a bullet fired at close range. The photo shows Mr. Schwartz wearing his jacket while permitting a bullet to be fired at him at close range.

YOUR HEALTH

How You May Banish
Spots "Before" Your Eyes

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
Commissioner of Health, New York City

Floating spots before the eyes, is the description given an annoying symptom complained of by lots of folks.

Such spots take all sorts of shapes. They may be like hairs, or like cobwebs or there may be a multitude of many shapes and sizes.

As the eye is moved the spots move. A given spot may be just to one side of the centre of vision. When you attempt to look directly at it, it moves away. The quicker your glance, the more rapidly the spot escapes.

This peculiarity has given to the condition the name, "muscae volitantes," meaning "running mice." If you have ever had this trouble you will appreciate how well chosen the name is, because as they run across the sky, or the ceiling, or any other bright background, the spots look exactly like a lot of scampering mice.

These specks are of little consequence except to nervous persons. They are much annoyed and bitterly complain of the interference with reading and writing caused by these floating spots. As they walk along a glowing cement sidewalk, such persons are watching the floating bodies. They imagine the trouble is growing worse and that certainly it must lead to blindness.

Of course, there are interferences with vision which do mean something. For instance, in the beginning of cataract, there are opacities in the crystalline lens of the eye. Such opacities interfere with vision, exactly as an ink splash, or a piece of mud on one of the lenses of your spectacles interferes with perfect sight.

As the cataract grows, there is gradual dimming of the vision and ultimately it is impossible to distinguish the outlines of any object. The difference between light and darkness can always be discerned.

a Licensed Pilot

Here is "Captain Bill," in private life, Mrs. Hannah Schuyler, of Fair Rockaway, N. Explaining her desire for the license, "Captain Bill" said, "My husband takes out fishing parties of men and, in addition, is often asked to take out parties of women who want to fish. But he has often complained that when he takes out women he finds that they talk too much about everything in the world but fishing. Now he will take out the men, and I will take out the women. Simple, isn't it?"

BREAK SPEED RECORDS IN AIR RACE AT ETAMPES, FRANCE

The world's air-speed records for 100, 200 and 300 kilometers were shattered at Etampes, France, by the French aviator, Krusch. His average speed was 278 kilometer, or 179 miles an hour. Krusch' record for the 100 kilometers is 2 minutes 13 1-5 seconds and for 200 kilometers 42 minutes 39 4-5 seconds. For the 300 kilometers by his time was 1 hour 4 minutes 39 1-5 seconds, slicing off 38 seconds from the former record made last year by Sadi-Lecointe. The photo shows Krusch, after the race and the aeroplane in which he established a new world record.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS ARE TO OBSERVE KIDDIES AID DAY

In response to the urgent request of the officers of the Alabama Children's Aid Society and following the desire of Governor Thomas E. Kilby, as expressed in his recent proclamation setting Sunday, October 30th, as Children's Aid Day hundreds of Alabama Sunday schools will observe this day and will take a special offering for the cause.

A special edition of "Our Children", the official bulletin of the society, has been mailed to every Sunday school superintendent in the state. The cards enclosed with the bulletin are already coming back to the state headquarters office of the society, promising to observe the day and asking for supplies to help in such observance. The office is now busy in supplying these requests. Among the supplies that will be sent to each Sunday school is a poster drawn by Paul Pim, a well known Birmingham artist, which has received favorable comment by all who have seen it.

In Gadsden, the local executive council, which was recently formed there to look after the social welfare agencies operating in Etowah county, took over the responsibility for raising the quota of the society in that county. In addition, they will raise the funds necessary to support some six other organizations, including the local tuberculosis association and others.

In other cities of the state local committees are being formed to handle the appeal, under the leadership of President Crawford Johnson, of Birmingham. Other members of the executive committee are Robert Jemison, Sr. and Rev. M. S. Barnwell, Birmingham, Terry T. Greil, Montgomery, Lloyd M. Hooper, Selma, Lee C. Bradley, J. R. Rice, J. W. ALABAMA CAT IS HELD IN ESTEEM

(International News Service)

BEAUMONT, Tex., Oct. 27.—Mr. Thomas Katt, Alabama's most famous feline, is one of Beaumont's best-known "citizens." He is the complacent old duffer who serves as a money pad in one of this burg's most famous "chow houses." Hundreds of thousands of dollars have passed over his body—for he adorns the cigar case over which change is passed in exchange for entrees from the menu. Tom Fuller, who is a good fellow and admits he is well up in "felinity," declares to the world that you couldn't buy his cat for a thousand cool, shiny clinkers. Thomas Katt is as firmly entrenched as the Rock of Gibraltar.

"That cat," declares the owner, "is worth $2,700 a year to me. He keeps rats and roaches completely out of my restaurant. He's as faithful as a mother."

Thomas Katt is welcomed to all parts of his "own cafe." Regardless of how much meat or fish is left on the butcher's block, the feline never touches it. His meal time comes regularly each day and his food is choice.

Thomas was brought to Beaumont several years ago. He was a kitten then—and he got homesick. Without bidding good-bye he was "Alabama bound," according to his owner, and actually made a trip overland from Beaumont to Birmingham, returning to his original "kittenhood" home. Tom Fuller, of Beaumont, learned from a letter that the cat had gone home. And then Thomas came back to Beaumont, via express. He has never been away since.

There are many dogs here who have "learned about cats from him," Thomas is regulated. He goes home and comes to work, making the trip afoot through alleys and streets that seem best to him. When his owner desires to send a note to his wife Thomas takes it.

This well-known animal is a cross between a house cat and a wild cat. He's the Dempsey of his clan, powerful—a whale of a cat. He knows the cop who patrols the "beat" of his neighborhood. He knows the chaf back in the kitchen, and when he gets hungry he rubs against the leg of the man who wields a wicked skillet. Fresh meat is passed to him. He chooses, with uncanny humanness, the brand he most desires.

Thomas can be found at work each day, but he can't be bought. He belongs to Tom Fuller—and Tom Fuller belongs to him.

SHIRLEY MASON TO BE SEEN
IN "WING TOY" AT DELITE
Shirley Mason, the popular Fox star, comes to the Delite Theatre in "Wing Toy" Friday. No production in which this dainty star has been seen approaches in beauty of story and detail her present picture.

Wing Toy has been left in infancy with a Chinese laundryman, and is reared by the great and august Yen Low, the most wealthy and most unscrupulous dealer in drugs in New York's Chinatown. Yen Low grows to love Wing Toy, and she learns to look up to and respect him as her "father," but not to love him. How she is rescued from her Oriental surroundings and a detested Chinese marriage, and restored to her proper station in life, supplies the action of this unique and beautiful story.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS TO BE BANQUO'S GHOST AT ARMAMENT CONFERENCE

By J. BART CAMPBELL,

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Senate "irreconcilables" are convinced that the League of Nations will prove the Banquo's ghost at the armament limitation conference.

Their fears and alarms have been increased by confidential advices they have received from overseas that the British, French and Italian delegates to the conference will come fully prepared to discuss changes in the League Covenant which would make it fit in with President Harding's idea of an "association of nations."

Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, chief spokesman of the Senate element whose watchword is "No entangling foreign alliances," is of the opinion that economically and financially, the United States is being slowly and secretly eased into the League. It is known at the Capitol that it was chiefly under British and French pressure that the recent Geneva convention of the League carefully sidestepped the moot question of world disarmament. It was decided to await developments at the Washington conference.

This, in Borah's judgment, was in line with the avowed policy of the British and French governments to have the League wait on the Washington conference before attempting to dispose of the major world problems confronting the former.

It is no new thing for the British and French to be anxious to make concessions to the American government if the United States were willing to be drawn into a League modified in accordance with American ideas.

Will President Listen?

The nub of the situation is, of course, how far the President would listen to the pro-League suggestions of Secretary of State Hughes and Secretary of Commerce Hoover, or how far the President would be able to persuade the Senate to agree to a modified League covenant.

Another determining factor of the situation is the historic fact that former President Wilson promised much at the Versailles conference, but was able to perform nothing when he returned home and found the Senate standing in the way of the entry of the United States into the League.

But Mr. Wilson's party was in the minority in the Senate. President Harding's party is not, although it does not command the two-thirds vote essential to the ratification of a treaty or an international agreement. President Harding's influence with most Republican senators is an open question where foreign relations are involved. He was, however, able to win nearly all of them—and even some of those "irreconcilable" opposed to the League, like Johnson, of California, and Brandegee, of Connecticut—over to ratification of the German, Austrian and Hungarian treaties. They split on the Borah proposal for free tolls for American coastwise vessels using the Panama Canal, although warned by Senator Lodge that there were "compelling reasons" why the administration did not favor it on the eve of the Armament Limitation Conference.

Underwood Favored Treaties

Senator Underwood, of Alabama, the Senate minority leader, supported the German, Austrian and Hungarian treaties, but he was unable to line up many Democratic senators for them. How far his sympathies would lend themselves to whatever suggestions for an "association of nations" the conference in which he is to participate may evolve is problematical. The recent treaty fight in the Senate indicated that Underwood's influence with a number of his Democratic colleagues is negative when pitted against the element in the Democratic party represented by Mr. Wilson.

But ratification of the treaties demonstrated beyond peradventure that enough Democratic senators are no longer susceptible to the Wilson influence to permit an almost solid Republican majority to carry out the administration's foreign policies. Senator Underwood and the Democratic senators who usually share his view of foreign questions in reality hold the balance of power on the Democratic side despite the swing of the Wilson element in the direction of the Versailles Treaty, and of the anti-Wilson element, as typified by Senators Reed, of Missouri, and Watson, of Georgia, away from it.

Without Democratic support it is patent that the ratification of any international pact the President and the State Department may negotiate is impossible, but the "irreconcilables," like Borah, of Idaho, and LaFollette, of Wisconsin, are now so few on the Republican side as to be almost negligible, and comparatively few Democratic votes are therefore necessary to insure ratification.

Senate Different Now

The Senate situation is accordingly obviously different so far as the present administration is concerned with foreign affairs than it was when Mr. Wilson presided at the White House and directed the activities of the State Department and replaced one Secretary of State with another whenever he failed to grasp the Wilsonian purpose and viewpoint.

And it is knowledge of this changed situation which is believed to have re-kindled the hopes and desires of Great Britain, France and Italy for participation in the League of Nations—not a Wilson-Lloyd George-Clemenceau League, but a Harding-Hughes-Hoover-Lodge League—by the United States as a sequel to, or perhaps the direct outcome of, the Armament Limitation Conference.

It is not denied that the representatives of these nations are coming to the conference not with these hopes and desires merely as by-thoughts of verbal suggestion or discussion, but in the form of carefully prepared and strictly confidential memoranda as to how far British, French and Italian governments are prepared to accede to structural changes in the League covenant.

CAMPAIGN STARTED

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Oct. 27.—(Special)—Friends of the Alabama Children's Aid Society headed by Terry T. Greil, chairman, are making preparations for an active campaign to be conducted in behalf of the society during the coming week. Mr. Greil is vice president of the society and is vitally interested in its work. Speakers representing the society have appeared in Montgomery before the various civic clubs this week, asking their moral support for the campaign.

Thousands Have Bad Breath And Don't Know It

Nothing is more offensive than a bad breath. Yet thousands of people suffer with this distressing affliction—and the surprising part of it is that a good part of them do not even realize it. Most people hesitate even to mention this disagreeable subject.

An excellent remedy for bad breath is daily use of an antiseptic mouth wash such as Steroline. A few drops keep your mouth cool, sweet and fresh. It makes an excellent dentifrice, as it gets between the teeth, reaching all the hidden spots that ordinary tooth pastes and powders cannot reach. It arrests decay which is one of the commonest causes of bad breath and gives your mouth that "clean feeling." Get Steroline from your druggist today. For sale by Albany Drug Co. adv.
